Privacy Policy
for Northvale Legal Service's Website

INFORMATION COLLECTED

We collect personally identifying information, such as your name, contact information (ex., street address, email address, telephone number, etc.) and any other information you provide to us. If you choose to provide personally identifying information to us, we will use and disclose it as described in this policy to respond to your requests and to track and store your information for future contact with you.

USE OF INFORMATION COLLECTED

We may use your personal information to provide you with communications from us with information about our services or items of interest related to our services (such as a newsletter). We do not share your personal information with third parties, unless required to do so by law. You may opt-out at any time from receipt of communications from us by using the Contact Us form on the Website.

SECURITY

We provide reasonable security to protect your personal information during its transmission and while it is in our possession. However, be advised that the Contact Us form is not necessarily secure against interception. If you need to communicate sensitive information to us, then please contact us by post, facsimile or telephone instead of by the Contact Us form. If you submit information to us, then you agree that we shall be held harmless from errors and omissions resulting in the inadvertent disclosure of personal, private or confidential information.

THIRD-PARTY INFORMATION

We provide links to other sites that we believe may be useful to you. However, we have no control over or responsibility for the content or policies of these other sites, nor do we track changes in the policies of these sites.

POLICY CHANGES

We may change this policy at our discretion at any time and without prior notification. However, the current policy will be posted on our Website.
